

Privacy Policy

Aim

Page Seager Pty Ltd (ACN 620 698 286) (we, our or us) is committed to complying with its obligations under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) (Privacy Act), including the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs).

We are committed to respecting your privacy and protecting your personal information. Our staff are trained to protect your personal information in accordance with our policies, procedures and systems.

Policy

This policy outlines how we manage and secure your personal information. It also describes the kinds of personal information that we hold and for what purposes, and how that information is collected, held, used and disclosed.

This policy is easy to access and is available on our website at www.pageseager.com.au. You may request a copy of the policy by contacting the Privacy Officer on the details at the end of this policy.

Please read this policy carefully before you provide us with any personal information.

We will review this policy from time to time. We encourage you to check our website regularly as any updated policy will be available on our website.

Types of information that we collect and hold

General information

We may collect and hold the following types of personal information about you:

- identification information, including your name, date of birth, postal address, email address, fax number, telephone number, drivers licence number, tax file number;
- information about your legal matter or potential legal matter;
- billing and payment details;
- any complaint details;
- information about any enquiries made; and
- any other information that is necessary to provide you with legal services, which may include information about your finances and assets, property interests, employment history, income details, qualifications and travel history.

Sensitive information

We may need to collect sensitive information about you. Unless the information is required or authorised to be collected by law, we will only collect sensitive information with your consent where that information is reasonably necessary for our functions.

We may collect and hold health information about you, but only to the extent it is relevant to the legal services we provide.

Information required by law

We may collect personal information about you because the collection of the information is required or authorised by law or a court/tribunal order.

Social media

We may collect information about you when you interact with us through social media channels, including Facebook and LinkedIn. Please note that we will only interact with you on confidential matters via a secure forum.

Collecting your information

Collecting personal information

We collect your personal information so that we can perform our functions and activities.

We will, if it is reasonable and practical to do so, collect personal information directly from you.

We may collect your personal information when:

- you fill out a form (e.g. acceptance page of our engagement letter);
- you give us paper correspondence (e.g. letter or notice);
- you give us information over the telephone, via fax or post;
- you interact with us electronically, via our client portal or in person;
- you access our website; and
- we provide legal services to you.

Collecting personal information from other sources

Sometimes we collect personal information about you from other sources where it is necessary to do so. This may happen where:

- you have consented to the collection of the information from someone else;
- we are required or authorised by law to collect the information from someone else; or
- it is unreasonable or impracticable to collect the information from you personally.

Examples of other sources that we may collect personal information from include, but are not limited to:

- accessing information that is publicly available (e.g. on the electoral role, telephone directories, Personal Property Security Register, Australian Securities Investment Commission website, Australian Business Register website, the Land Information System Tasmania website);
- SAI Global website;
- authorised representatives, including any person who has authority to act on your behalf;
- your business partners or related entities;
- your family members, medical advisors, current and former employers;
- regulatory authorities;
- professional advisers;
- insurance companies;

- banks and financial institutions;
- Work Cover;
- Medicare, Centrelink, Australian Tax Office; and
- government departments and government agencies.

What happens if you do not provide us with your personal information?

If you do not provide us with your personal information:

- we may not be able to verify your identity; and
- this may affect our ability to provide you with the legal services you want.

Unsolicited personal information

If we collect personal information about you that we did not ask for, we will check whether we could have collected that information ourselves. If we could have collected the information, we will handle it in the same way we handle other information we collect from you. If:

- we could not have collected the personal information; and
- the information is not contained in a Commonwealth record,

we will destroy the information or de-identify the information provided it is lawful and reasonable to do so.

Notification of collection of personal information

When we receive personal information directly from you, we will take reasonable steps to notify you of the collection and the circumstances that surround the collection.

Sometimes:

- we collect your personal information from third parties; or
- you may not be aware that we have collected your personal information.

If we collect information that can be used to identify you, we will take reasonable steps to notify you of the collection and the circumstances that surround the collection.

Protecting personal information

Storing personal information

We are committed to keeping your personal information secure.

We store your personal information in different ways, including in physical and electronic form and via Page Seager's Client File Share.

We treat all personal information as confidential. We will take reasonable steps to ensure personal information is protected from:

- misuse, interference and loss; and
- unauthorised access, modification and disclosure.

How we store your information

Some of the ways we store your information are:

- confidentiality obligations for staff with access to personal information;
- personal information is only accessible on a need to know basis;
- document storage facilities at our premises and offsite;

- training employees on their obligations with respect to personal information;
- implementing policies and procedures regarding the appropriate use of personal information;
- secure databases and applications at our premises and offsite, including those accessed via the internet;
- security measures for access to systems;
- control of access to premises; and
- electronic security systems, such as firewalls and data encryption, passwords and logins, antivirus, antispyware, backup and recovery of systems.

What happens if we no longer need your personal information?

If we no longer need your personal information for any purpose, we will take reasonable steps to destroy or permanently de-identify the information, unless:

- the information is contained in a Commonwealth record; or
- we are required by law, or a court/tribunal order, to retain the information.

Purposes for collecting, holding, using and disclosing information

We collect, hold, use and disclose your personal information for the purpose it was collected and related purposes, including:

- to identify you;
- to provide legal services to you, your business partners or your related entities;
- to provide you with a cost estimate for legal services;
- to manage your file and account;
- for accounting, billing and other internal administrative purposes;
- to develop and manage our relationships with you, your business partners or your related entities;
- to provide you with information about changes in the law, events, functions, training or legal services that may interest you, unless you tell us not to;
- to improve our legal services;
- to fulfil our professional obligations;
- to respond to complaints;
- to comply with any applicable laws, regulations or codes of practice; and
- for any other purpose for which you have given your consent.

Use and disclosure of information

Use and disclosure of personal information

We will not use or disclose personal information we hold about you that was collected for a particular purpose for another purpose, unless:

- you have consented to the use or disclosure of the information for another purpose; or
- the use or disclosure is otherwise permitted under the Privacy Act (e.g. you would reasonably expect us to use or disclose the information for another purpose or the use or disclosure of the information is required or authorised by law or a court/tribunal order).

Disclosure to third parties

Sometimes we may disclose personal information about you to third parties. Examples of third parties that we may disclose your personal information to include, but are not limited to:

- authorised representatives, including any person who has authority to act on your behalf;
- subject to our professional obligations, any person where necessary to perform legal services, including regulatory authorities and financial institutions;
- the Legal Profession Board of Tasmania, Law Society of Tasmania and any other relevant authority;

- debt collection agencies;
- any other person where you have given your consent.

Overseas recipients

We may need to disclose your personal information to recipients outside Australia in limited circumstances, including where your information relates to a claim made in respect of sea carriage for a client of ours who is an overseas based insurer / Protection and Indemnity Club.

Disclosure

Where your personal information is disclosed, we will:

- take reasonable steps to ensure that the overseas recipient does not breach the APPs, unless an exception in the Privacy Act applies; and
- seek to ensure that information is used, held and disclosed consistently with the Privacy Act and any other applicable laws.

Direct marketing

Direct marketing

We may use or disclose your personal information (excluding sensitive information) for direct marketing purposes, including but not limited to, providing you with information about changes in the law, events, functions, training, legal services or products that may interest you.

Sensitive information

We will only use or disclose your sensitive information for the purposes of direct marketing if you have consented to the information being used or disclosed for the purposes of direct marketing.

Method of direct marketing

We may conduct direct marketing via email, telephone, fax, post, in person, our client portal or any other electronic means.

Opt out

If at any time you decide you:

- do not want to receive any more direct marketing material from us;
- do not want us to use or disclose the information for direct marketing in the future; and/or
- want to know where we obtained the information, you may:

- contact the Privacy Officer; or
- opt-out of receiving any more marketing via any opt-out mechanism contained in our marketing correspondence.

All our marketing correspondence will display a clearly visible and user-friendly opt-out mechanism. We may imply consent to receive direct marketing material if you do not use the opt-out mechanism.

Processing requests

If you request to no longer receive direct marketing material we will process your request within a reasonable period after the request is made.

Quality of personal information

We will take reasonable steps to ensure that any personal information we collect, use or disclose is accurate, complete, up-to-date and relevant to our functions or activities.

If you believe that your personal information is not accurate, complete or up to date, please contact the Privacy Officer.

Access to personal information

Requesting access

You may at any time request access to personal information we hold about you. We will give you access to that information, unless an exception in the Privacy Act applies.

You can request access to your personal information by contacting our Privacy Officer.

Dealing with access requests

We will respond to a request for access within a reasonable time (usually 30 days), and give you access in the manner you request, if it is reasonable and practicable to do so.

We may need to verify your identity before we give you access to your personal information.

Access fees

Depending on the nature of the request, we may charge you a small fee to access that information.

Refusal to give access

If we refuse to give you access, we will:

- take reasonable steps to give you access in a manner that meets our needs as well as yours; and
- provide you with the reasons for our decision as required by the Privacy Act.

Correcting personal information

Requesting correction

If you think that any personal information we hold about you is incorrect, inaccurate, out-of-date, incomplete, irrelevant or misleading, you may request us to correct the information by contacting the Privacy Officer.

Correcting information

We will take reasonable steps to correct that information.

Dealing with correction requests

We will respond to a correction request within a reasonable time (usually 30 days).

We may need to verify your identity before we correct your personal information.

Notification of correction to third parties

If we correct your personal information that we have previously disclosed to another entity, and you ask us to tell the other entity about the correction, we will take reasonable steps to tell the other entity about the correction, unless it is impractical or unlawful to do so.

Refusal to correct information

If we refuse to correct the personal information, we will provide you with the reasons for our decision as required by the Privacy Act.

Anonymity

You have the option to remain anonymous, or to use a pseudonym when dealing with us where it is lawful and practical to do so.

Government related identifiers

In certain circumstances we may be required to collect government-related identifiers such as your tax file number, Medicare number, Centrelink reference number, drivers licence number, passport number and individual healthcare identifiers.

We will not use or disclose this information unless the use or disclosure is permitted under the Privacy Act.
